MINDSCAPE 3D

CHAPTER 2: FAMILY EXPECTATIONS

Main Character: (Player)

Supporting Characters: Mother, Father, Tim

Main Themes: Academic pressure, family expectations, self-doubt, overthinking, and social comparison

SCENE 1: ARRIVING HOME AFTER SCHOOL

The chapter begins with (Player) arriving home after school. (Player) looks tired and walks slowly toward the bedroom. After placing the school bag beside the desk, (Player) takes out the examination paper and stares at it for a moment.

The room is quiet, but (Player) cannot stop thinking about the examination.

(Player) (thinking):

"It's finally over. I should be relieved, but I still feel worried."

(Player) places the examination paper on the desk and remembers how the examination started. The camera slowly focuses on the paper as the sound of a ticking clock becomes louder.

(Player) (thinking):

"I studied for this exam. I stayed up late reviewing the lessons because I didn't want to fail."

(Player) pauses and looks at the paper again.

(Player) (thinking):

"But I arrived late. Everyone had already started answering when I entered the classroom. I felt like I was already behind before I even began."

(Player) sits on the edge of the bed and holds their head with both hands.

(Player) (thinking):

"What if I missed an important question? What if I made mistakes because I was rushing? I don't even know my result yet, but I'm already imagining the worst."

The player can interact with three objects in the bedroom.

Interactive Objects

Examination Paper — (Player) remembers the pressure of answering questions while watching the time.

School Bag — (Player) remembers rushing to collect everything before leaving home.

Notebook — (Player) remembers studying late at night and promising to do well on the examination.

After interacting with the objects, (Player) looks at the examination paper one more time.

(Player) (thinking):

"Maybe if I had done things differently, the examination would have gone better."

The screen slowly darkens. The sound of the clock becomes louder, transitioning into a flashback of the examination morning.

SCENE 2: FLASHBACK

An alarm rings beside the bed, and (player) suddenly wakes up. The clock shows that it is already later than planned.

(Player):

"Wait... what time is it?"

(Player) checks the clock and immediately gets out of bed.

(Player):

"Oh no! I'm going to be late for the examination!"

(Player) quickly looks around the bedroom. The school bag is not ready, and the examination materials are scattered around the desk. (Player) begins searching for the items needed for school.

Mini-game: Before the Bell

Objective: Help (Player) prepare for the examination before leaving home.

The player must explore the bedroom and collect three important items:

- Student ID
- Examination materials
- School bag

A short timer appears on the screen to represent (Player) limited time. The player must move around the room and interact with the correct objects.

As the timer continues, (Player) becomes more nervous.

(Player):

"Where did I put my ID? I know I left it here!"

The player eventually finds the missing items and reaches the bedroom exit.

(Player):

"Okay, I have everything. I just need to get to school!"

(Player): rushes out of the bedroom.

SCENE 3: THE JOURNEY TO SCHOOL

(Player) runs toward the usual transportation stop. (Player) repeatedly checks the time on the phone.

(Player):

"Please, not today. I have an examination."

(Player) remembers staying awake late the previous night, reviewing one more page of notes after another.

(Player) (thinking):

"I should have slept earlier. I kept telling myself that I needed to review just one more lesson."

A short flashback shows (Player) studying at the desk late at night, looking tired but continuing to read the notes.

(Player) (thinking):

"I thought studying longer would make me feel prepared. I didn't realize how tired I would be the next morning."

The scene returns to the transportation stop. The vehicle finally arrives, and (Player) gets on.

(Player):

"I can still make it. I just need to get there."

(Player) reaches the classroom and notices that the other students are already answering their examination papers. The room is quiet except for the sound of pencils moving across paper and the wall clock.

(Player) slowly opens the door.

(Player):

"Excuse me, ma'am. I'm sorry I'm late."

The teacher looks up.

Teacher:

"(Player), the examination has already started. Please come in quietly and prepare your things. You will have to work with the remaining time."

(Player):

"Yes, ma'am. I'm sorry."

(Player) walks to the assigned seat and takes out the examination materials. After sitting down, (Player) notices that the other students have already answered several questions.

(Player) (thinking):

"Everyone has already started. I'm the only one who's just beginning."

(Player) looks at the first question and tries to remember the lessons reviewed the previous night.

(Player) (thinking):

"I know I studied this. Why can't I remember it now?"

(Player) looks at the clock again.

(Player) (thinking):

"There's so little time left. I have to hurry."

The player briefly takes control to interact with the examination paper. (Player) attempts to focus, but the pressure of arriving late makes it difficult to settle down.

The clock continues ticking as (Player) works through the questions. The scene does not require the player to complete a full examination. Its purpose is to show how arriving late and feeling rushed affected (Player) experience.

The screen gradually fades as the examination ends.

SCENE 4: BACK TO THE PRESENT

The player returns to the present. (Player) is still holding the examination paper.

(Player) (thinking):

"That's what happened. I woke up late because I studied all night, and then the traffic made everything worse."

(Player) places the paper on the desk.

(Player) (thinking):

"I keep thinking that if I had slept earlier, prepared my things the night before, or left home sooner, maybe everything would have gone differently."

(Player) looks down at the floor.

(Player) (thinking):

"I don't even know my result yet, but I already feel like I failed."

(Player) takes a deep breath, but the worry remains.

Mini-game: COURTROOM?

Objective: Help (Player) identify the thought that is causing the most worry.

Several thoughts appear on the screen. The player must choose the one that best represents what (Player) is worried about at that moment.

Choice A: "What if I fail the examination?"

Choice B: "What if my family becomes disappointed in me?"

Choice C: "What if everyone else gets a better score than I do?"

(Player) responds according to the player's selection.

If the player chooses A:

(Player) (thinking):

"I'm scared that all the time I spent studying won't be enough."

If the player chooses B:

(Player) (thinking):

"I'm worried that my family will think I didn't try hard enough."

If the player chooses C:

(Player) (thinking):

"I keep imagining everyone doing better than me, even though I don't know their results."

After the selected response, (Player) puts the examination paper down.

(Player) (thinking):

"Maybe I'm not only worried about the exam. I'm worried about what the result might mean about me."

(Player) remembers the conversations at home about grades, achievements, and the future.

(Player) (thinking):

"I want my family to be proud of me. I want to feel proud of myself, too. But sometimes, it feels like one mistake could ruin everything."

The activity helps the player recognize (Player) thoughts without treating the selected answer as a diagnosis or a test score.

SCENE 5: FAMILY DINNER

(Player) hears their mother calling from downstairs.

Mother:

"(Player), dinner is ready! Come down before the food gets cold."

(Player) puts the examination paper inside the notebook and walks downstairs.

At the dinner table, the family begins talking about their day. The conversation starts normally.

Mother:

"How was school today? Wasn't your examination scheduled for this morning?"

(Player) pauses before answering.

(Player):

"It was... okay, I guess."

Father:

"Did you manage to answer everything?"

(Player):

"Not everything. I arrived late, so I had less time than I expected."

The father looks concerned.

Father:

"What happened? You knew the examination was important."

(Player):

"I studied late last night, and then I woke up late. The traffic made it worse."

Mother:

"Oh, (Player). You should try to rest properly before an examination. You can't study well if you're too tired."

(Player):

"I know, Mom."

The mother changes the subject and mentions a cousin who recently received an academic award.

Mother:

"Your cousin has been doing well lately. I'm happy to see young people working hard for their future."

The parents do not intend to hurt (Player), but the comment reminds (Player) of the examination and the fear of disappointing the family.

(Player) (thinking):

"They didn't say I was a failure. They didn't even compare our grades directly. But why does it feel like I have to prove that I'm doing enough?"

The player receives two dialogue choices.

Choice A: "I'm just tired. I want to rest for a while."

Choice B: "I'm happy for my cousin. I just feel worried about my own progress."

If the player chooses A, (Player) quietly finishes dinner and returns to the bedroom.

If the player chooses B, the mother listens but does not fully understand how much pressure (Player) is feeling.

Mother:

"I understand that school can be stressful. Just do your best, okay?"

(Player):

"I'll try, Mom."

Both choices lead to (Player) returning to the bedroom. The dialogue changes according to the player's choice, but the main story continues.

(Player) (thinking):

"I know they want me to have a good future. I just wish I knew how to stop feeling like I'm falling behind."

SCENE 6: REMEMBERING THE PAST

(Player) sits at the desk and notices an old photograph, a certificate, and a notebook from an earlier time.

The player can interact with these objects to learn more about (Player) past.

Interactive Object 1: Old Certificate

(Player) picks up an old certificate from a school activity.

(Player) (thinking):

"I remember how happy I was when I received this. Back then, I was proud of myself just for trying something new."

(Player) looks at the certificate for a few seconds before putting it down.

Interactive Object 2: Old Hobby Item

(Player) notices an item connected to a hobby they used to enjoy.

(Player) (thinking):

"I used to spend so much time doing this. I didn't always think about whether I was good enough. I just enjoyed doing it."

(Player) pauses.

(Player) (thinking):

"When did I start thinking that everything I do has to lead to something impressive?"

Interactive Object 3: Old Notebook

(Player) opens an old notebook containing plans and ideas from the past.

(Player) (thinking):

"I had so many things I wanted to try. Sometimes I wonder what would have happened if I had continued."

(Player) begins thinking about the opportunities they believe they missed.

(Player) (thinking):

"Maybe I could have become better at it. Maybe I could have achieved more by now."

The player is presented with a reflection prompt.

Prompt: "What is (Player) focusing on right now?"

Choice A: The progress (Player) has already made.

Choice B: The achievements (Player) imagines they should have reached by now.

Choice C: One small step (Player) can still take in the present.

Each selection produces a short response from (Player) , but the scene continues regardless of the choice.

(Player) (thinking):

"I can't change what happened in the past. But I keep using it to judge where I am today."

(Player) closes the notebook and looks around the bedroom.

(Player) (thinking):

"I wish I could see my progress without always thinking about what I haven't achieved."

SCENE 7: OVERTHINKING

(Player) lies in bed, trying to sleep. However, the thoughts about the examination, family expectations, and missed opportunities keep returning.

The room becomes quiet. The camera slowly moves toward (Player) as the inner thoughts appear one by one.

(Player) (thinking):

"I should have done more when I was younger."

A short pause.

(Player) (thinking):

"What if I never become successful?"

Another pause.

(Player) (thinking):

"What if my family eventually realizes that I'm not as capable as they think?"

(Player) turns to the other side of the bed.

(Player) (thinking):

"Everyone expects me to have a plan, but I don't even know what will happen next."

(Player) looks toward the clock. It is getting late, but sleep does not come easily.

(Player) (thinking):

"I know I can't change the examination anymore. I know worrying won't give me the result. So why can't I stop thinking about it?"

The player has no objective during this scene. They can only observe (Player) thoughts and the quiet environment.

Eventually, (Player) becomes exhausted and falls asleep.

The screen slowly fades to black.

Narration:

"Sometimes, the mind keeps searching for answers even when there is nothing left to change. (Player) falls asleep, but the worries are still waiting for the next day."

This scene shows that exhaustion does not automatically resolve (Player) concerns.
